Series: African Governance, Development, and Leadership

"This book provides a refreshing overview of the three regions' political, economic, and historical associations. Each contributor offers a concise analysis of country-specific, regional, and international dynamics that ultimately informs readers of the PRC's and Taiwan's struggles for influence in African nations. For those who desire to understand PRC economic and cultural rapprochement, Sino-African relations, or the future of Taiwan, this book serves as a timely addition to the existing literature."

— Alecia D. Hoffman, Alabama State University

"This book makes unique contribution to scholarship on international relations and development by explaining Taiwan's and China's involvement in Africa through the careful documentation and illumination of the important fact that: the pursuit of strategic social and material interests using power and influence is the key factor that underlies the time, form, nature, scope, specificities and consequences of China's and Taiwan's involvement in Africa, and how African nations on their part engaged the two countries."

— Samuel Zalanga, Bethel University

ABOUT THE EDITOR

Sabella Ogbobode Abidde is professor of political science and a member of the graduate faculty at Alabama State University.

"Embossed with a balanced intonation and representation of Chinese and Taiwanese contestations, this book explores the two Asian countries' presence in Africa from a security, political, economic, and cultural diplomacy point of view. The book is an important but rare collection of creative and thought-provoking chapters by superstars in the field of Asian and African studies. I therefore recommend it to scholars and readers itching to understanding the historical and contemporary trajectory of the trilateral relationship."

— Lawrence Mhandara, University of Zimbabwe

"This is one of the most comprehensive and significant books on Africa-China-Taiwan relations in the contemporary era. It is a must-read for academics, students, policymakers, and anyone seeking new ideas and perspectives on Africa-China-Taiwan relations."

— Felix Kumah-Abiwu, Kent State University
